Presentation of Case Notes by the Ombudsman to the Speaker of the House of Representatives

The Ombudsman, Judge Emeritus Joseph Zammit McKeon, today presented the 44th edition of the Case Notes to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Dr Anglu Farrugia.

The Case Notes reflect the work carried out by the Office of the Ombudsman over recent months, documenting key investigations, findings, and recommendations which provide a clear overview of how public administration has been held accountable in matters where citizens sought redress.

Speaker Farrugia thanked Judge Emeritus Zammit McKeon for the presentation of the Case Notes, noting that the work of the Ombudsman is an essential instrument in safeguarding the rights of citizens and strengthening parliamentary oversight. He reaffirmed that the House of Representatives remains committed to giving due attention to the Ombudsman's reports and to ensuring that accountability and fairness remain central to the public service.

In accordance with parliamentary procedure, the documentation will be formally tabled in the House of Representatives on Monday, 15th September 2025, when Parliament reconvenes after the summer recess.
