PRESS RELEASE BY THE OFFICE OF THE SPEAKER

Speaker inaugurates an exhibition marking the centenary of Poland regaining independence

“However, in spite of not wanting to forget what our countries had to endure, the divisions imposed by the Cold War are now in the past, and Poland, just like Malta, with its proud history and rich culture, is an intrinsic part of Europe, building a prosperous future as members of the European Union. Having said that, also as members of the European Union, both our countries are also facing challenges such as migration, which is not a problem of a single state but of the union as a whole. This makes it even more crucial to work closer together as a union of nations.” This was stated by Speaker Anglu Farrugia while addressing those present at the inauguration of the exhibition marking the centenary of Poland regaining independence.

In his concluding remarks, the Speaker said that in today’s Europe, Europeans share fundamental principles and prosperity but we always need to keep in mind that these have only come about as a result of the sacrifices of those who came before us, and thus one can never take peace and prosperity for granted.

Members of the public are invited to view the exhibition marking ‘The Centenary of Regaining Independence of Poland: People and Places’ in the foyer of the House of Representatives, Parliament of Malta, up until Wednesday 27 June 2018.
